Problems

- Insufficient level of public awareness and existence of stereotypes;
- Absence of social standards for social services, provided for children and families in crisis;
- Insufficient level of interaction between local executive bodies and establishments, acting in the best interests of children;
- Inefficient usage of available resources;
- Territorial community isn't sufficiently aware of the necessity to influence the situation and to participate in the fates of families and children;
- Imperfect legislation;
- Lack of staff

Key approaches in operating integrated social services

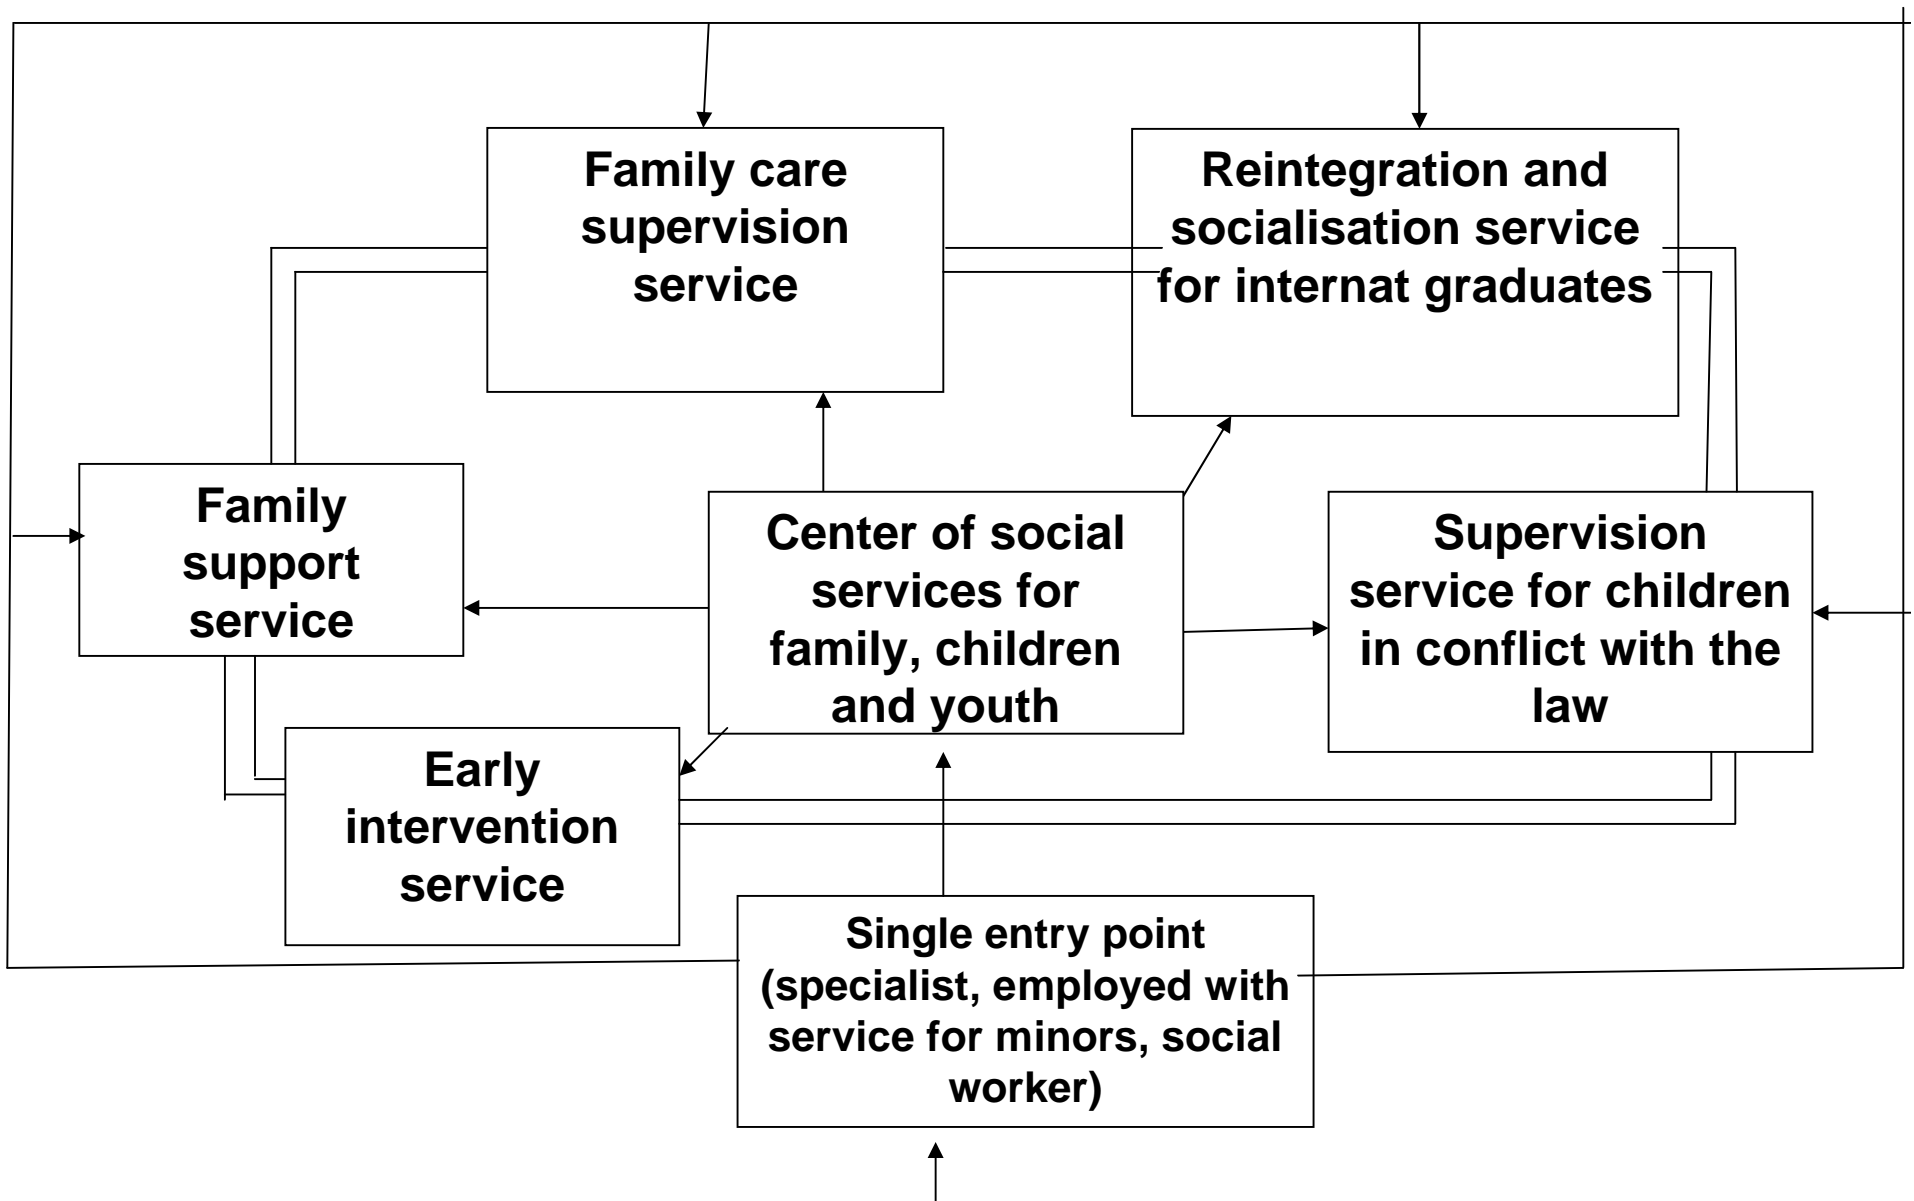

- “Single entry” principle
- Comprehensive assessment of the situation in the family
- Joint planning of activity during case resolution
- Single location
- Partnership relationships between the family, all organisations and interested persons, who form social network of the client

Single entry point

(specialist, employed with service for minors, social worker)

- identifying the status
- assessment document
- referral to one of the social services
- control for referring the client to one of the services
- providing feedback for the client
